COST OF SABLES.

How the Price Advances After the Skin Leaves Siberia.

Up in the great watershed dividing Siberia and Mongolia lives a peculiar race of people, half Chinese, half Tibetans. Few Europeans have ever seen them. In fact, with the exception of one or two enterprising explorers or geographical enthusiasts who have crossed the Altai range, European eyes have never gazed upon the aboriginal Syots of northern Mongolia.

Sable hunting in the Siberian mountains and northern Mongolia is confined almost exclusively to the Syots and other native races, and it would surprise a good many fur dealers in England to know the prices which are paid by the Siberian traders to these poor aborigines for the skins they collect.

The Siberian trader, knowing his market, makes periodical journeys into Mongolia. It is safe to say he does not take a kopek of money with him, but he drags behind him a well-stuffed caravan loaded with tea, tobacco, gunpowder and shot, strings of beads for the women and roughly made moccasins for the men. In due course he will come across a Syot encampment.

The trader sits on his wagon and barters cheerfully. With the eye of a connoisseur and with fingers rendered deft by long practice he sees and feels the smooth, warm skins of the little animals.

This small black one—well, a two ounce packet of tobacco is enough for that; that large black one—a handful of shot and an equal quantity of gunpowder; a packet of tea for a lovely skin with a long black stripe down the center; this one, a fine skin, but a little bit hurt by the shot entering the back—well, say a string of beads for that.

In their original undressed state it is safe to say that the skins do not cost the Siberian trader much more than a few pence each on the average. As the poor sable travels farther westward, however, he gets dearer and dearer. In Tomsk one can buy a very good sable for something like 5 or 6 rubles, about 18s. In Omsk few are sold under 10 rubles—$11. In Moscow 100 per cent goes on. In St. Petersburg no one except the middle class or a functionary would wear a sable under $5. In Paris and London a real Siberian sable skin will fetch anything up to $20, but the imitation sables of the present day have done much to depreciate this wonderful trade.—London Mail.

HIS HIGH PRICED EYE.

How a Clever Bunko Game Was Played on a Son of Sunny Italy.

A well planned scheme was worked on a down town Italian confectioner the other night whereby he lost $50. About 2 p. m. a man who had one good eye and one glass eye came wandering along the street and stopped at this Italian's fruit stand. He stooped over to look at some of the fruit, when unexpectedly his glass eye fell from its socket down among the bananas and oranges.

The pretending purchaser at once began a diligent search for the missing glass eye. With both hands he clawed into the fruit, scattering it in all directions. The Italian came forward and told the stranger to stop. The one eyed man explained that his glass eye had dropped down there and that he wanted to get it.

The Italian became enraged and told the stranger to come around in the evening and he could get the other eye. The man explained he was a stranger and would not be here in the evening, but if he (the Italian) found the eye he should bring it to his hotel, where $100 would be paid to him.

An hour later another man came along, pretended to make a purchase, and while lingering around in the fruit stand suddenly espied the wonderful glass eye. The man from Italy made a grab for it, but was too late, as his would be customer already had it. Both claimed the eye, and a quarrel ensued. The Italian patched matters up by giving the stranger $50 for the eye, thinking he would get $100 upon returning it and he would have $50 clear.

He went to the hotel with the eye to get the $100 that he was told awaited him there. He found that no such man had been there and no $100 was left there for him. He then saw how he was worked and notified the police.—Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette.

Sheep Ticks.

Every one who has sheep knows the tick, the worst pest of this animal, that does serious harm to the young lambs without suspicion of the cause to the shepherd. This reddish brown creature is a wingless fly and a very greedy blood-sucker. A dozen of them on a lamb will quickly suck the little one dry. It is to be looked after at the time of shearing, when these insects go for shelter to the lambs. It is found mostly where the animal cannot reach it—on its head, buried in the skin, sucking the blood.

Its skin is tough, and it is not easily crushed with less than a blow of a hammer. In small flocks it is not much of a job to go through, with a pair of small scissors to cut the ticks in two, but where the flock is over a score it will be necessary to dip the lambs.—Exchange.

The Count's Mistake.

"So Gwendolyn is not to marry the count after all?"
"No, poor man. He tried to tell her that her singing was something that made one glad to live, and his pronunciation was so broken that she thought he said it made one glad to leave, and then she requested him to leave."—Indianapolis Journal.

Testing Him.

Bagley—Do you recollect that $5 I let you have about a year ago?
Brace—Perfectly.
Bagley—That's good. I see your memory is all right. How's your eye-sight?—Harlem Life.

The Evil Eye.

Savage people have a superstition that an evil eye may be cast upon a person to bring all sorts of trouble and misfortune. That seems like a pretty foolish notion, but it isn't much worse than some of the notions which civilized people indulge in. One worn out superstition is the belief that if a man inherits weak lungs from his parents he is pretty sure to die of consumption. The actual fact is that if such a man will only take proper care of himself he will really be safer from consumption than a careless person who has no inherited weakness. Carelessness is the real evil eye. Carelessness will develop a tendency to consumption in any body.

The lungs are composed of very delicate, sensitive tissue, even in the healthiest person; that is why they yield so quickly to the attack of tainted blood. If the blood is allowed to get impure and impoverished, and bile-poisoned, the seeds of consumption will spring up in the best kind of a constitution. The real consumption-taint is in the blood.

Hundreds of cases of so-called "hereditary" consumption have been completely and permanently rooted out of the system by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, simply because it gives the blood-making glands power to pour a fresh abundant supply of rich, red, healthy, blood into the circulation. This drives out all poisonous and unhealthy germs. It stops the waste of tissue and the formation of morbid deposits; builds up fresh, normal, healthy lung tissue and solid, muscular strength.

In all the weakened debilitated conditions which are the forerunners of consumption, Dr. Pierce's Discovery is the most perfect nutritive and strength-builder. It is assimilated by the weakest stomachs.

The Trans-Mississippi and International Congress is composed of delegates from every State and Territory West of the Mississippi river. The idea of this exposition originated in that Congress at its session at Omaha in 1895, and the project has become a National enterprise and the National Commission has been organized and is in active service, there being one commissioner for each of the several departments of the Government. Most of the Trans-Mississippi States are well along in the way of gathering exhibits from their respective States and many of them have made liberal appropriations, while others are preparing exhibits through private enterprise.

Vice-President H. B. Maxson of Reno, has made arrangements whereby he can get Nevada exhibits, shipped from any point in the State along the line of the O. P. R. R. to Omaha and return, and he requests all persons who wish the interests of the State advertised, to co-operate with the Exposition County Commissioner of his county, whose name is shown above, and prepare some product of his county and send it to the nearest point on the C. P. R. R. from which place it will be sent to Omaha and exhibited, and returned to the same point at the close of the exposition, free of expense to the exhibitor. Full information should accompany everything sent for exhibition. Before sending anything to the line of the railroad a full description should be given to the Exposition Commissioner of the county, who in turn will notify the Vice-President, who will notify him what action to take, otherwise there might be many duplications. Apply to your County Representative for further information, and don't let this opportunity of advertising the resources of Nevada be lost.

STATE CONTROLLER'S REPORT.

The report of State Controller La-Grave for the year 1897 has been submitted to the Governor and by him filed in the office of the Secretary of State as the law provides. It shows that the total property tax for 1897 was $213,358 55; the tax from the net proceeds of mines, $5,442 95, and the receipts from miscellaneous sources, including gaming licenses and poll taxes, $21,397 73. The net cash paid into the State Treasury was $219,567 27, which was derived from the several counties. The receipts from the sale of lands amounted to $45,012 72; from interest on deferred land payments, $65,568 39; interest on United States bonds, $25,561 60, and from miscellaneous sources, including District Judges salaries, $26,650 52, making the total cash receipts $382,860 50.

The disbursements amounted to $467,740 04, expended for the following purposes: General appropriations, $168,808 40; special appropriations, $17,526 69; deficiencies and relief bills, $28,207 45; legislative expenses, $29,964 34; miscellaneous purposes, $18,270 12; support of schools, $125,431 99; purchase of Nevada State bonds, $65,361 20; interest on State bonds, $14,166 85.

The total assessed valuation of property in the several counties, including the net proceeds of mines, was $33,497,248 30. The assessed value of real and personal property is as follows: Churchill, $587,329; Douglas, $946,021; Elko, $4,559,925; Esmeralda, $597,670; Eureka, $1,586,182 50; Humboldt, $3,338,611; Lander, $1,306,408 17; Lincoln, $540,220 67; Lyon, $1,140,156; Nye, $385,277; Ormsby, $1,384,722; Storey, $1,412,920; Washoe, $4,693,975; White Pine, $528,785.

There was a slight decrease in the assessed value of real and personal property as compared with the year 1896, but this was more than compensated for by the increase in the net proceeds of mines, and the total revenue was slightly in excess of 1896.

The assessed valuation of railroads in the State is as follows: Central Pacific, $6,743,409 50; Virginia & Truckee, $655,511; Carson and Colorado, $399,270; Nevada, California & Oregon, $70,140; Nevada Central, $184,443; Carson, Tahoe, L. & P., $133,767; Eureka & Palisade, $209,650; Pacific Transportation Company, Lincoln county, $224,282, making the total value of railroad property in the State $8,618,477 50.

The expenditures for the last two years have been in excess of the revenue, but this is due to extraordinary expenditures, such as public buildings, which alone cost $35,761 93.

THE SENATE FOR BIMETALLISM.

The United States Senate has passed the Teller resolutions which declare that the obligations of the United States are payable in coin, gold or silver dollars, at the option of the Government according to the terms of the contract. This is practically a reaffirmation of the Matthews resolution adopted by both Houses some years ago and which was supported by McKinley, Allison and others, who abandoned principle for office when the gold combinations and other trusts assumed control of the Republican party.

The debate on the resolution was prolonged and at times acrimonious. The galleries were crowded, and a gold standard resolution offered by Lodge of Massachusetts was voted down by a decisive majority and the Teller resolution was passed by a vote of 47 yeas to 37 nays. It now goes to the House of Representatives to be disposed of as Ozar Reed thinks proper.

The importance of the resolution was emphasized by several Senators during the debate who declared that it was the preliminary alignment of the great political parties for the Presidential campaign of 1900. It is claimed by the silver men that the gold Republicans will be overwhelmingly defeated at the polls next November and the gold men virtually admit the claim, and if the Teller resolution is defeated in the House at this session the next Congress will adopt it. Every man who votes for it commits himself to bimetalism and unless, like McKinley, Allison and others they sell principal for office, they will align themselves with the free coinage men in 1900.

The Republican Senators who voted in opposition to their party on the Teller resolution are already hedging and will probably try to explain their position next week. They are now endeavoring to hide behind the Hawaiian treaty. It is strange what ridiculous excuses will be offered by those who pretend to make laws for the masses, and advantage taken when an opportunity offers. Finances, bimetalism and the annexation of new territory are all mixed up in a general conglomeration and the people as usual are fooled. It is doubtful, however, whether the time will ever come when the men who are sent to the National Capital will ever try to legislate for the people.

The cold wave continues and it seems to be general over the United States. At Bangor, Maine, the temperature was reported nineteen degrees below zero, so Nevada people have no very great kick.

THE MOON AND I.

A golden moon that leans her gentle face
On the blue darkness of the summer sky—
We watched her steal aloft a little space,
My love and I.

Parting the opal clouds, upward she rose
To wander lonely amid the stars on high.
We thought our world as bright as one of those,
My love and I.

Dear love, the moonlight smote your rippling hair
And made you smile you knew not how nor why
My heart beat strangely as we lingered there,
My love and I.

I asked her, fooled by the bewitching light,
If she would try to love me by and by.
She rose and left me. I stood in the night,
The moon and I.

—A. Matheson in Good Words.

THE SPORTS OF LONG AGO.

They Were Substantially the Same as Those of the Present Day.

The boys and girls of the present day who become enthusiastic over some new sport and boast that their particular "club" has the very "newest thing out" would be surprised if they could discover how closely many of the old time pastimes resemble our own.

The Eskimos of the frozen north, the Tupinambas of the Brazilian pampas, the gamins of the Paris streets, the boys and girls of London, of Boston and of Philadelphia, have one kindred tie—the love of sport. There is nothing new under the sun, said the wise man, and especially is there nothing new in youthful games.

Archaeologists have found dolls in Egyptian pyramids and on prehistoric tombs; the name of a popular ball club was found scrawled upon the outer walls of Pompeian houses, and one of the most exciting matches on record was the one stubbornly fought between the rival lines of Montezuma, King of Mexico, and Nezahualpilli, 'tzin of Tezcuco.

The boys of ancient Greece and Rome played at whip top, and quoits, and baseball, and pitch penny, and blind-man's buff, and hide and seek, and jackstones, and follow my leader, just as do the boys of today. The girls were experts at acrobatics, and swinging, and dancing, and grace hoops, and dice throwing, and ball play, and, in Sparta, even at running, wrestling and leaping. Tobogganing is as old as ice and snow, and when you play at cherry pits you are only doing what Nero and Commodus and young Themistocles did ages ago in Rome and in Athens.

So, whatever the age or whatever the clime, boys and girls of the world have always lived more for play than for anything else, and however harsh or hard their surroundings, however stern or strict their fathers and their mothers, they always found and always made the most of the time for play.

Said a critic recently on the subject of recreation, "The sports of the day are fast reducing themselves into so many sciences, overweighed with rules and restrictions that often take the real play element from them and make them as unyielding as a problem in algebra."

There is no fun in making our sport a matter of life and death. I know growing people who in these days of prize giving in all manner of games center their whole desires not on the fun of the game, but on the prizes offered. They really seem as much disappointed if they do not carry off a trophy as if they had met with some serious loss. Let us take our fun with a jollity or not at all. Interest is one thing and irritability is quite another.

We have only to watch the intense excitement of some of the amateur players in popular games to realize that the critic was right about that algebra problem. The complaint of "unfairness" on one side and of disagreeable triumph on another seem to be the most noticeable features at the close of the sports of today, and we cannot help wondering if this was a feature of the games of olden times or if in this respect the young people of the present really have "something new."—Philadelphia Times.

Out of His Depth.

"What," said the girl with loose hair around her ears and a spasmodic manner, "is your opinion of the ultimate destiny of the human race?"

"Did I—or—understand you to say the ultimate destiny of the human race?" inquired Willie Washington.

"Yes."
"Why—am—if you want my candid opinion, I should say that—uh—that it's a long ways off."—Washington Star.

Disgraceful Scenes at the Denver Banquet.

The cattlemen's meeting at Denver on Thursday was the scene of disorder and almost riot. The police were powerless to control the crowds of people, which acted more like packs of wolves than human beings.

The committee which had the barbecue in charge had only arranged to feed 12,000 people, but nearly 40,000 presented themselves. The hungry mass fairly fought to get to the tables and the waiters finally resorted to cutting off great hunks of the roasted meat and tossing it into the crowd where a scramble would ensue and the meat torn in pieces as though by dogs.

The tables were upset and confusion reigned and at last the mob attacked the roasted pits and dragged sides of beef from the trench and fought for them after getting them out. The cattlemen were completely disgusted and say that a barbecue will not be a feature of the next convention.

THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Scenes Which Impress the Observer—Sad Chapters in the Lives of Men.

The city of Washington grows upon me in point of charm. One has to absorb its atmosphere for some time before the feeling of being a visitor in a strange and enchanting place wears away. I never look at the gigantic pile of marble of the capitol building but what I see new beauties and vaster majesty. Every onlooker must admit that it is indeed worthy of the American people. By moonlight, it surpasses everything the imagination can conceive. Perhaps those who have gazed upon the architectural magnificence of foreign lands, the Taj Mahal, the Ducal Palace of St. Peters, do not experience this sensation of reverence and awe. But after mature reflection I am inclined to think that if there be more inspiring buildings in the world I, for one, do not care to see them. There is no compensation they could give me for the loss of the feeling that there is the surpassing triumph of human architecture, the Capitol of the United States.

Washington is so different from other American cities that comparison is out of the question. Outwardly seeming, it is an overgrown village, peaceful, quiet and slow, lacking the hustle and hum of a truly American town. And so it is, in a business sense. The smoke of no factory ladens the atmosphere. Manufacturing enterprises are discouraged. But beneath this apparent serenity, more of human disappointment, failure of hopes, despair, and destruction of ambition, is veiled than in any other city in this great land. It is not the weaklings here who perish, but those of capabilities above the mediocre on up to the very heights of greatness.

The stage of life here has much of tragedy. The story of the claimants against the Government, who wear out their lives vainly waiting for Congress to act upon their claims, if written, would afford some sad chapters of pathos.

When a new administration is ushered in, here flock, as to a Mecca, the respected citizens from every town of every State, with high hopes of reward for party fealty. Armed with letters from local party leaders, and in many instances with specific promise of position from his representative, the way of preferment looks easy. Alas! the member of Congress soon finds out, if he is not already aware, how much easier the promise before election than its fulfillment after. There may be twenty other representatives who have promised the same place. Then comes the bitter and prolonged struggle in which the member whose influence is most needed by the administration wins. There are nineteen disappointed ones. To some of these nineteen the disappointment is fatal to hope.

One sees them now everywhere—the disappointed office-seekers. Many of them came here inauguration time and are still waiting. The despair depicted on some of the faces keeps pace with the growing forlornness of their appearance. Last March they were well dressed and were registered at good hotels. They live now—Heaven only knows how and where! Their coats are threadbare; their faces haggard. Many have families at home that are suffering want, and to whom they write letters of cheer and hope, but which must read more like a miserie of despair. Some of them will never return, from sheer pride and disappointment.

Washington is a most cosmopolitan American city in the respect that here one sees a fairly representative sprinkling of the population of all sections of the country. It is the best city to gain an understanding of American life. It is the best city to gauge public sentiment. It affords the most comprehensive view of the political arena. Politics here are more objective than subjective. We watch the plays upon the political chessboard near to the actors but only in remote cases as positive factors in such changes. We are more likely to be pawns than players.

Two years of opportunity to study the chief legislative body of the land leaves me with some previous convictions strengthened and many others shattered.

I have grown to have boundless faith in the American Government. A greater and greater belief that whatever struggles may be before it, that this Government each year shall be nearer and nearer Lincoln's ideal, "A government of the people, for the people and by the people."

This conviction is not reached by any closing of the eyes to political corruption. Rather with a better knowledge of how far-reaching and fine are the operations of the antagonistic factions of democracy. It is the result of seeing how resistless is truth in the end. How that the tendency of political evil is to invite by open shamelessness its own destruction at the hands of public sentiment.

The wide-spread hold which Bryan has upon the masses, increasing with every passing hour, is an evidence of the force of this conviction. That the people are now well organized and under one faithful leader, instead, as hitherto, of being possessed of a multitude of leaders desiring to proceed in a multitude of directions, goes without saying. The four years intervening between the last election and the next will witness the drilling and schooling of the army of triumphant democracy. Do not expect to accomplish too much, even with Bryan as President and a reform Senate and Congress. If the finances can be adjusted upon a basis equitable between man and man,

Royal makes the food pure, wholesome and delicious.

In all the multifarious transactions where money is used, believe that a nobler work has been done than the freeing of the slaves.

You will not see any pet theories enacted into law. You will not see millions upon millions of paper money issued and loaned to the people. You will not see the Government at once purchase all the railroads. No Congress will ever be elected by the people of the United States that will adopt any measure so radical 'till a majority of the American people are clamoring for it and are willing to concede for it. It has taken a quarter of a century of agitation to make the people clamorous for silver. Do not imagine that any scheme of equal importance will be enacted into law without as hard a struggle for supremacy. It is the fire through which all reforms must go.

Henry George is dead. But he left a thought behind which I believe will yet master the world. It is the basic idea of the so-called single tax. He clothed the idea with much that is surely impractical and erroneous. But he sowed a seed that will someday bear abundant fruit for the welfare of mankind. It will not blossom, like a mushroom, in a night, but fifty years from now the world will know that such a man as Henry George lived.

The world now says kind things of Roosevelt and places his name well up among those who have merited the gratitude of men. But he died in obscurity. So it is with them who have been pioneers in the fight for a money that will not fly from the poor in aid of the rich. The press of the great cities have ridiculed, maligned and cursed them as thieves and liars. But the power of truth is greater than the anathemas of kings. Each day now marks one nearer when the money changers will be conquered by triumphant democracy.

Let us remember one thing. Be true to the valiant leaders who have been true to the people in this great struggle now that victory is near. Be true to Bryan, for no leader has appeared in history more worthy of following. And let us of Nevada be true to Stewart.

There is a place in Statuary Hall of the Capitol of the United States where Nevada whenever she elects may place two marble statues of her great. Some day, I think the will of the people of the Silver State will put the statues of William M. Stewart and John P. Jones there. For time deals justly by the friends of men, though men betray their friends. C. A. NONCROSS. Washington, D. C. Jan. 24, 1893.

Substantial Improvements.

The Washoe County Bank people have been busy for a week past in making improvements in their banking room. The changes will afford convenience, more light and will be more attractive. By the new arrangement of the netting on the counters and the door leading to the safe deposit boxes a straight passageway to the big vault allows the patron to go to his or her box without delay or the necessity of calling someone from behind the counters. The light is greatly improved and the banking room is made more cheerful. The directors' room will be repapered and ornamented, and the insurance department will be cased in with glass and connected directly with the bank counters, whereas formerly, were any papers required from the vault, it was necessary for Mr. Fish to go around to the vault to procure them. It was also the same with the big record or policy books. The improvements are substantial and permanent, indicating not only the progressiveness of this institution, but its solidity. Its clientele is extending to all parts of the State and northern California and its correspondents comprise the first-class banking institutions of the country at large.

Reno's banks are a strong factor in her general prosperity as well as an aid to the future greatness of the town and the country tributary to it. A movement on their part toward permanent improvement inspires confidence in the people of the community as well as those who contemplate making Reno their home, or starting some business venture.

The Palace Dry Goods and Carpet House finding themselves overstocked on ladies' dresses and jackets, also children's jackets, have decided on a complete clearance sale of these garments. In order to insure a complete and quick clearance, the Palace has made such cuts in prices on these goods as has never been made before. It will surely pay anyone to buy now, have the use of the garment for the rest of the season and lay it away for the next. Besides this we may have plenty of cold weather still. Call early and secure a good selection.

Beauty Contest in Washoe County for Omaha Exposition.

As Vice President Maxson has called upon me to furnish him with the names of the handsomest ladies in Washoe county, I have concluded to leave their selection to a vote of the ladies of the county.

All ladies, residents of Washoe county, may submit to me by written ballot, in person or by postal card through the mail, the names of eight ladies whom they consider the best looking in the county, and must sign their names to the list as the voter, and no one will be allowed more than one vote. On the 15th of February the votes will be closed and the names of the eight ladies receiving the highest number of votes will be given to the Vice President and their photographs requested. These photos will be grouped with those chosen from the other counties of the State, and from this collection the Exposition management will choose two whose faces will be cast upon souvenir medals to be issued by the Omaha Exposition.

At the Opera.

The Calhoun Opera Company held forth at the Opera House last night in the "Grand Duchess." As a variety show they were first class. The ten people in the orchestra had shimmered down to five, and the five were good, but the troupe "needed fixing." The leading lady had a small touch of the influenza and the tenor caught cold between here and Salt Lake.

The Leardo Brothers were good in their acrobatic feats, but no one could understand just what connection their pantomime had with the opera of the Grand Duchess. Cyclone or Rabbit Foot, one of them was missing, came before the curtain and kicked up all of the dust on that immediate part of the stage and received an encore and bowed himself out.

The Amazon drill of twelve young ladies was very good, but the lower extremities of their anatomy varied so much in general outline and size, that some looked better fed than others.

The electrical effects were sadly missing. They claimed they had them all in a car, but the anchor ice in the river prevented their production. The show was good, only the tickets at $1 were a little high. Twenty-five cents at the Tivoli would be about the figure for such a production and a glass of beer on the side.

Did She Ever Live in Boston?

A young lady of Buffalo who wanted something that would keep her stockings up where they belonged, thus addressed the terror-stricken young store clerk:

"It is my desire to obtain a pair of circular elastic appendages capable of being contracted and expanded by means of oscillating burnished steel appliances that sparkle like particles of gold leaf set with Alaska diamonds and which are utilized for keeping in position the habiliment of the lower extremities which innate delicacy forbids me to mention."—Buffalo (WY.) Voice.

The "Voice" at a Political Meeting.

A candidate at an election was known to be strongly in favor of flogging in the army. He said he saw no necessary disgrace attached to being flogged. "Why," cried he, "I was flogged myself once, and it was for telling the truth."

"And it cured 'ee, now doubt," said a rustic in the meeting.—London Telegraph.
